Website

The new website is coming along. The basic information is in and now I am trying to pretty it up.

It is my hope that it will be up and running for the public within the next two weeks. But no latter than the end of April. I think I am comfortable with that window. ☺

I believe that we have some incredible opportunities with this new website. I have discussed some new ideas with a few people and they seem to think that it is a good direction for us to go with the website. One that will help us make our community known to more people. It is only an idea at this time and there are a few hurdles to get over which I hope to jump over soon. If we get past them then I will let you know what all the ideas are. For now, please continue to pray for the project.

Day Light Savings Time Change

Congratulations to all who remembered to set your clocks ahead last night. The rest of you, I will see you at the end of Mass. ☺
