Epiphany

We had a small showing for the Epiphany yesterday. They got away with a first class feast with no homily. There is a reason for that. I am going to give it here instead.

I just want to focus on one point. Unusual for me, I know. I am sure I will hit a tangent at some point to make 2 or 3 points. That is another story.

The point I want speak on is the gifts. Not those of gold, frankincense and myrrh, but of self. The gift in the sense of the Litter Drummer Boy. Sure, the 3 kings had cool gifts to bring to lay before the King. What do I have? Answer: Everything. That is to say, you have everything the King wants you to lay before Him; YOURSELF.

It is hard to find gifts for people. I only have one person I shop for anymore, now that Mom and Dad have passed away. That is my sister. She is the only one of the six siblings that cares to stay connected to me. I was one week out before Christmas and still did not know what to get her. I finally did and had it overnighted to me. She liked it. And if she didn't, she would never tell me so. The real gift was that I thought of her and took the time to drive up to Flint to go out to dinner with her.

God feels the same way. The greatest gift we gave Him was showing up for Mass and spending time with Him. The second greatest gift we gave Him was spending time with our family sharing our love for each other.

This ties us into today, the celebration of the Holy Family. I better stop here or that will be another point. You will hear it in today's homily though so sit back, relax and enjoy.

Oh - and if you are reading this right now, during the homily, please put it down and listen. Thank you ☺
